Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling invented by H R Hoagland we feel [illegible] the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used

It fastens without bolt or screw and is the [illegible] easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling [illegible] which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant and is convenient safe and secure

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle [illegible] in use, and will [illegible] We have come to the conclusion to use this [illegible] ourselves and recommend its [illegible] We consider it far superior to the Brown's Patent heretofore considered the [illegible]

DECISION IN U S CIRCUIT COURT

[illegible]

U S Circuit Court for the District of Oregon, Tuesday July 19 1870

[illegible]

This suit was commenced May 21 1869. On July 4th [illegible] the defendant Burbank demurred to the bill. After argument of the demurrer the plaintiffs had leave to file an amended bill which they did [illegible] 1870. From this amended bill it appears:

I. That the plaintiffs are citizens of Kentucky and that the defendants [illegible] of Oregon [illegible] on May 4 18[illegible] one Daniel H [illegible] intestate [illegible] his only heirs at law the plaintiffs [illegible] wife of John H [illegible] the Squires the children of Sarah Squires deceased [illegible] daughter of said Daniel H [illegible] his children Mary F Cooper [illegible] Lowsdale Millard O [illegible] and that said Daniel H died seized in fee simple of lot 4 in [illegible] in the city of Portland aforesaid and that said heirs are now seized of the same [illegible] the said plaintiffs Emma S [illegible] the Squires being so seized of one tenth thereof [illegible] $1,000.

II. That the defendant Burbank claims some equitable right in said premises arising out of the facts and circumstances which follow, namely that on March 8 1850 said Daniel H and one Stephen Coffin and W W Chapman were occupying [illegible] tract of land including the premises in controversy known as the Portland Land Claim and that the title thereto was [illegible] wholly in the United States and that the said Chapman [illegible] desirous to acquire the [illegible] interest in said lot as against said Daniel H [illegible] said Coffin and one L B Hastings and [illegible] Baker make a certain writing [illegible] the said Daniel H [illegible] Chapman [illegible] Hastings and Baker [illegible] named grantees and the said Chapman [illegible] H signed his name thereto

III. That said writing of March 8 1850 purports to be a deed [illegible] for the consideration of $[illegible] paid [illegible] Chapman Daniel H [illegible] Hastings and Baker proprietors of Portland [illegible] unto said Chapman Hastings and Baker lot 4 in block [illegible] Portland with covenants to warrant and defend the said property against the lawful claims of all persons claiming by through or under the grantors and further that if they the grantors obtain title from the United States they will convey the same to the grantees by deed of general warranty and that upon the back of said instrument was written the following: For value received we [illegible] to W W Chapman our interest in the within lots. Given under our hand [illegible] this March [illegible] 1850 [illegible] Hastings [illegible] Baker and that said Burbank claims to have acquired [illegible] in some way from said Chapman the interest so attempted to be released [illegible]

IV. That said Daniel H [illegible] had no knowledge of the making of the writing of March 8 aforesaid and that he [illegible] not witnessed or [illegible] knowledge [illegible] had no power [illegible] the name of said Daniel H to said writing or any such [illegible] the covenants or provisions contained therein and that said writing is not the deed of said Daniel H neither did he ratify or confirm the same [illegible] wholly fraudulent and void and that afterwards said Chapman attempted to [illegible] interest in the premises [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] is a portion of the property [illegible] two [illegible]

2 That it appears that the title to the [illegible] the defendant [illegible] the plaintiff [illegible] Burbank is the property [illegible] that said Burbank a party to [illegible] equitable titles [illegible]

Upon the amended bill the legal title [illegible] heirs of Daniel H [illegible] tenants in common [illegible] the writing of March 8 was executed by [illegible] Daniel H [illegible] bound him and his heirs still the legal title is in these heirs and Burbank [illegible] a right in equity to have [illegible] such legal title

At the date of the writing of March 8 1850 none of the parties had any interest in the land except the bare possession [illegible] the legal title was in the United States

The first covenant in the writing is a special covenant [illegible] of warranty against the lawful claims of all persons claiming by through or under the grantors and only operates upon the estate which Daniel H then had in the premises. It is well settled that such a covenant only refers to the existing title [illegible] estate granted and does not bar the covenantor from claiming the same premises against his covenantee or grantee by title acquired subsequent to the making of his own deed ([illegible] 65)

[illegible] this case Daniel H acquired the title to this property from the United States [illegible] the date of the writing which contains this covenant and he or his heirs hold it unaffected by it. The second covenant that if the grantors obtain title from the United States they will convey the same to the grantees by deed of general warranty is [illegible] one for further assurance and was intended to meet the contingency which afterwards happened that the United States should grant the premises to Daniel H. Assuming then for the present that it should be determined upon the final hearing of the cause that the writings and conveyances under which Burbank claims are valid and [illegible] for the purposes and intents expressed therein the heirs would have the title and Burbank would be entitled in equity to a conveyance of the same. But in the meantime it is charged in the bill that these writings are fraudulent informal and void and are only a cloud upon the title of the plaintiffs. The enquiry involves the question of whether Burbank is entitled in equity to have a conveyance of the land from the heirs of Daniel H [illegible] by virtue of the second covenant [illegible] has an equitable estate in the premises or not. To determine this question is the proper province of a Court of Equity.

3 It does not appear that the plaintiffs are in possession of the premises

Whether it is necessary that the plaintiffs should be in actual possession of the premises to enable them to maintain this suit as against Burbank need not be considered. It appears that they are seised in fee simple. This gives them constructive possession and the right to the actual possession which will be presumed until the contrary appears

The demurrer is overruled

British Colonial Policy

In the House of Lords on June 20th Lord Russell called attention to the change of Colonial policy on the part of the Administration and expressed regret at the withdrawal of British troops from Canada and New Zealand. He contrasted the state of the Colonies when the present Government came into office with the feeling provoked by the coldness and [illegible] they had exhibited when the Colonies [illegible] asked for assistance. The Colonies [illegible] proud of their connection with the Mother Country, and it would be a great evil [illegible] to weaken their attachment. He moved that a Commission be appointed to inquire into the means best fitted to guarantee the security of the Queen's dominions

Thereupon ensued a debate in which Lord Northbrook pointed out the necessity of a [illegible] of troops at home for the security of the Empire, and Lord Grey declared that the principles laid down by successive Colonial Secretaries must necessarily lead to the dissolution of our Colonial Empire

The London News condemning Earl Russell's views as more suitable to 1770 than 1870 said

A [illegible] is said to be on a mission [illegible] England to ask the intervention of the Home Government in the matter of the Fenian [illegible] the United States. He is coming [illegible] How should we like to [illegible] messengers converging upon London from every point of the compass. THE EUROPEAN QUESTION

New York papers of July 6th comment on the situation which affairs in Europe have reached consequent upon the controversy relative to the disposal of the Spanish crown. The Herald has the following information concerning [illegible]:

He is descendant of Murat, brother-in-law of the First Napoleon, the brilliant cavalry [illegible] and afterwards the unfortunate King of Naples. His father is the chief of the [illegible] His mother [illegible] was known as the Viscountess de B[illegible] [illegible] daughter of the first Napoleon. The Prince [illegible] is a Catholic and [illegible] A [illegible] dispatch [illegible] that the [illegible] people [illegible] the government [illegible] declaring that no descendant of Murat will ever wear the Spanish crown

The Herald has these observations on the candidature:

A Prussian prince on the throne of Spain would by one stroke overturn all the schemes and plans of Napoleon which it would prove for Prussia a grander victory by far than Sadowa. It would proclaim to all the world that Bismarck having made himself master of Germany had taken the Latin races in hand and that he had made a bold but successful [illegible] No one knows as well as [illegible] that so long as Napoleon is in the field [illegible] so long as the French people [illegible] a Hohenzollern on the Spanish throne is an impossibility

Continuing the subject the Herald maintains that no one will be king of Spain without Napoleon's permission. It thinks he wants to place the son of Isabella on the throne and recent incidents and events seem to justify this opinion. We quote:

So long as Queen Isabella refused to abdicate [illegible] importance was attached to the various candidates. Since her resignation the question as to who is to be the next occupant of the Spanish throne is settled. There ought to be no doubt about it. It is clear that the Queen's abdication was sanctioned and [illegible] urged, if not advised, by Napoleon. It is also clear that the Queen could not abdicate without good and satisfactory reasons. In sacrificing herself she could have no sufficient reason but one. She might have remained Queen of Spain till her dying day [illegible] doubt she would had she not been assured that by abandoning her own right she improved the chances of her son. It is to be remembered too, that the abdication [illegible] which took place in the presence of men who are in the confidence of the Emperor Napoleon was in favor of the Prince of the Asturias. Napoleon is not the man to betray a woman in distress. Besides, it ought to be remembered that his consent is absolutely essential to the appointment of any successor to Queen Isabella. He cannot accept Montpensier, for by so doing he would strengthen the cause of the Orleanists, and that is the reason why Montpensier has not long since been proclaimed king. He cannot accept Don Carlos, for that would be to go back upon the principles which made him what he is. He cannot have either an Austrian or a Prussian prince on the Spanish throne, for that would strengthen his natural enemies and the hereditary rivals of France. He will not sanction the election of an Italian prince for the simple reason that he has done quite enough for Italy already. He is indifferent to the union of the Peninsula because he sees that union at present is impossible. But the Prince of the Asturias is a young [illegible] who has a right to his mother's throne, who ought not to be held guilty of his mother's faults, who is likely to remember his benefactor and who would be free from foreign and dynastic entanglements, and therefore Napoleon sees in him a means of strengthening his own position and of making more secure the position of his son

The Tribune comments in this manner:

The Emperor is doubtless in earnest when he declares that no Hohenzollern prince shall with his consent ascend the Spanish throne. The relations of the principality with the threatening Confederation of North Germany are too intimate to be broken by a sentimental connection with France, and so far as the Murat line is concerned Napoleon has every reason to infer from the analogies of the past that the influence of Berlin would easily outweigh the memories of B[illegible]. The old Marshal repeatedly betrayed the First Emperor; his son has at times been a thorn in the side of the Third. Prince Leopold could not be trusted as an ally of the Tuileries while he might be very dangerous as an instrument of the Prussians. Of his personal character contemporary history unfortunately tells us little

CURRENT NOTES

Forney's Philadelphia Press of July 4th contained twenty four columns of Revolutionary reading matter prepared from the files of newspapers published in Philadelphia in 1776, the Journal of Congress and other documentary evidence in the way of books pamphlets charts and various records public and private that have come down to our times. Every advertisement, every dispatch every piece of news, every item of matter of any kind whatever was reprinted verbatim and credited specifically to the source from which it was extracted

There is melancholy in Kalamazoo—that is, among those who believe in the Constitution as it was. There was a grand spelling match in that town on the 21st ult. It took place at the principal hotel and aroused great popular interest. "The great the noble and the wise" were present and their sons and daughters competitively spelled. The victor who spelled all the rest down and carried off the laurels was a Miss Nellie Dye who is by nature as well as by name a colored girl. The local paper suggests to the shocked citizens to ask advice of Nasby

The Chicago Republican of the 6th inst. states that crop prospects in the Northwestern States, which up to a recent period were quite flattering, have suffered serious diminution from the late period of intense heat. Within two weeks drought has prevailed over a large portion of the territory and inflicted great damage. The wheat crop of Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin supposed to be nearly out of danger has been badly shrunk in the berry and the yield promises to be light and inferior in quality. Corn has stood the torrid season better but the effects of deficient moisture are very visible

President Barnard of Columbia College in a communication to the New York [illegible] makes the statement that the common belief in regard to the excessive cost of artificially manufactured [illegible] manufacture having been profitably carried on in Paris that it can be manufactured in this country for less than a quarter of a cent per pound, and that it may be delivered to customers at twenty dollars per [illegible] and [illegible] a fair profit. President Barnard has made the study of this subject a specialty and his statements are therefore not to be lightly held

On the 1st inst three important postal conventions went into effect [illegible] The new postal treaty with the North German Union reduces the letter rate of postage from ten to seven cents by direct route and from fifteen to ten cents via England to all the States composing the North German postal jurisdiction including Austria, Luxemburg etc. Also the new postal conventions with the Hawaiian Kingdom and North British Columbia respectively fixing the prepaid postage on letters to each of these countries at six cents per single rate. Four hundred new money order offices will be put in operation during the present month. The free delivery system will also be extended

Not a General Party Issue

In some parts of the country a strenuous effort will be made to introduce in the fall elections the issue of free trade. Opposition to protection is proclaimed by the Democratic leaders in all places where it is safe to avow the doctrine and an attempt is made to bring this question, the subject of so many contests in former times, into more prominence as a political issue than it has had for some years. But the question is one that can only be skirmished on particular localities—it cannot now be made the leading feature, the central idea, of a campaign.

The principle of protection must continue to prevail among us, for as old countries which have developed their manufacturing industries and have no fear of competition, demand free trade, so young countries which are seeking to establish their industries and to avoid the depressing influence of foreign competition demand protection. It is very plain why this is so. "The consumers being the ruling class in the old State," says Alison in his History of Europe, "free trade is inscribed on its banners, the producers being the dominant one in the rising one, protection is its war-cry." And after observing that the people of the United States have always adhered to the protective system, this writer pointedly says: "It is no wonder they do so; if they acted otherwise their rising manufactures would be extinguished at once by the British steam engine."

A new book on American Political Economy has been published by Prof. Bowen of a leading Eastern College, from which we extract the following statement of the purposes and objects of protection:

> The purpose of a Protective Tariff is to secure to each nation the use of its own natural advantages; or rather, to prevent it from throwing these natural advantages away by too assiduous and exclusive cultivation of them, the effect of which would be, that the other arts and branches of industry would perish by neglect. A community cannot prosper by devoting all its energies to the cultivation of but one of the three great branches of industry. Devoted to agriculture alone, or to manufactures alone, or to commerce alone, it makes no difference; in either case, it will have but one class of articles to sell, while it will have two classes of articles to purchase; in either case, it will have a greater surplus of one kind to dispose of, than other nations will be willing or able to purchase, except at the lowest possible price; and to sell at the lowest possible price, as we have now demonstrated, is to sacrifice the whole of the natural advantages with which we are endowed by Nature, and to put ourselves on a par with other countries in this respect, while we are below them in every other respect.

The interests of this country are so vast, the resources to be developed are so many and so widely spread, that there is a general demand for protective legislation, while those who consistently support free trade theories are either devoted to some special business, or are situated in localities where there are few interests requiring protection. Besides, it is very noticeable that many who clamor for free trade in one respect as loudly call for protection in another. Different interests with which they are connected are interwoven with each other, and a dividing line cannot be drawn, except in a few cases, to ascertain who the actual free traders are. The subject is so mixed that it cannot become at this stage of our industrial development a strictly partisan one. The Democratic party could not be carried over in a body to free trade doctrines. Hence, as before remarked, the subject is one that can be skirmished on, but one that will not serve as a general political issue on which parties will divide.

War Among Democratic Leaders.

A bitter feud is working among the Democrats of Ohio. Vallandigham is in the field as a candidate to the United States Senate, to succeed Sherman, and the Pendleton wing of the party are resolved to wage a stout war against him. This is the culmination of certain dissensions of long standing.

Vallandigham has been pretending for years that he had no design of entering politics; yet he has been all the time working most industriously and adroitly for political advancement. In 1866 Gen. Ward, a War Democrat, got the nomination for Congress in Vallandigham's district. He came very near being elected. The friends of Gen. Ward were perfectly certain that he could carry the district next time, and demanded that he be renominated. But Vallandigham thought he could be elected on that occasion himself, so he went into the Convention, and by his superior knowledge of party tactics defeated Gen. Ward and obtained the nomination. In the election he was badly beaten by Gen Schenck, and he and his friends bitterly complained that the "War Democracy" had slaughtered him.

Early in 1868 an election for United States Senator came on. Vallandigham was a candidate. So was Thurman. Pendleton was a candidate for President, and each of the candidates for the Senate was anxious to secure his influence. But Pendleton could not afford to be drawn into this fight and so raise up enemies against himself in the Presidential Convention. He therefore remained neutral. But Vallandigham was not satisfied with that. He insisted that Pendleton should favor him, and threatened that if he did not he would spoil his chances for the Presidential nomination. The history of the New York Convention, where Vallandigham played into the hands of Tammany, and nominated Seymour, shows how relentlessly the promise was kept. And now that Vallandigham is coming forward again as a candidate for the Senate, the friends of Pendleton declare they will retaliate, oppose Vallandigham candidates for State offices and the Legislature, and wage war against every interest that can favor his possible successorship to Senator Sherman.

The State of Ohio is the center of the influence of that portion of the Democratic party who want to repudiate the public debt and adopt extreme measures generally. It is the radiating point of the ideas of the "Western Democracy." Yet the internal condition of the party there is by no means flattering to its friends. Republicans believe that their triumph in October will be more than usually sweeping and decisive.

Great Britain has been for many years importing half of her annual consumption of breadstuffs. Most of this comes from America and Russia. An English writer says that these two countries "by uniting together and passing a non-intercourse act, might any day cause subsistence to run up to famine prices in the British Islands. The consciousness of this is what renders the Government timid, and has so often led to the acquiescence in insults which would have been mortally resented in former days." Here is the secret why Great Britain is not now so officious an intermeddler in the affairs of other countries as she once was, and why she has of late years been so very loth to go to war. Nothing but the most overwhelming necessity would draw her into a participation in the present struggle in Europe.

Labor and Labor Saving Machinery.

It has been truly remarked that the great outcry that is made in this country about Chinese labor is another evidence that history repeats itself. For it is within the memory of many still living that Irish and German laborers encountered similar opposition from native-born laborers, and that the introduction of labor-saving machinery has, at various times, been fought by all classes of manual laborers as calculated to reduce wages. But events have proved the short sightedness of all such opposition. We take from an Eastern paper the following very sensible observations on this subject:

> When we remember that men's labor has come to be but an exceedingly small fraction of the labor done by machinery in this country, we can see that so long as the machinery can be kept going, without drawing from those pursuits, like agriculture, where manual labor is yet predominant, the national wants are sure to be met. Such was the case during the war; not only were the labor saving inventions up to that time driven to their utmost, but numberless new ones were called into existence. When peace returned, therefore, the million of men restored to the ranks of industry were but a drop in the bucket as compared with the whole sum of the productive forces of the country, and their influence was hardly felt. In support of the view of the relative efficiency of manual and machine labor, let us remark that in the spinning of cotton, for instance, one man, by the aid of steam, produces as much yarn as 25,560 could under the old system; and in weaving cotton, one steam engine works one thousand looms, needing the attendance of 200 girls, and doing the task of 4,000 men. And yet, instead of abridging the employment of manual labor, machinery creates new fields for it. For instance, when locomotives were first introduced, many simple minded farmers expected so many horses to be thrown out of employment, that the value of those useful animals would be greatly depreciated. Yet horses are very much higher now than they were in the primitive days of stage coaches. The sewing machine, which perhaps has a wider scope than other labor saving implements, instead of lessening the demand for female labor, has increased it manyfold, and so it is with every other labor saving machine. As a general law, every new invention makes work as well as does it, develops new branches of business and immensely augments the volume of supply and demand. Then in many departments superior excellence is still reserved for manual labor, which commands a higher price than ever, as in the case of hand-sewed clothing, boots, shoes etc. It is useless, however, to enlarge upon this point. The clear fact that labor continues to be as much in demand as ever indicates that it has nothing in the future to fear from the increase of machinery, nor, for that matter, from the influx of bone and muscle from the Eastern hemisphere.

"Alas! the fleeting years glide by," writes Mr. Pungra in his railroad letter. Here is a decided genius for poetry. Why didn't the writer add to this mournful exclamation the touching inquiry in corresponding poetic measure, "When will our land grant come?"

CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA.

Large numbers of Salmon are caught in the Trinity river (Cal.), and sell readily at fifteen cents a pound.

Thirteen hundred and seventy tons of ore were extracted from the Chollar-Potosi (Nevada) mine in five days, showing an average assay of $60 per ton.

The municipal authorities at Gold Hill advertise for a family to reside at the Reservoir, so that they may be on hand to turn in the water in case of another fire.

The Trustees of Sacramento have enforced a tax of $10 on all male, and $15 on all female dogs. The Record has a leading article on the subject, protesting against the invidious distinction.

The White Pine News says a quartz team with 10 yoke of oxen hauled 52 tons of ore over a White Pine hill. The exact weight of the quartz was 105,300 pounds, and it is said to have been the heaviest load yet hauled in Nevada.

The San Francisco correspondent of the Trinity county Journal says there are on file in the Coroner's office of that city the two following certificates of death: "Died from rapture of the head," and "Suffocated by eating poison."

On the 13th inst., in San Francisco, Chief Crowley and Detective Ellis, after weeks of labor, succeeded in bringing to light the most extensive counterfeiting transaction ever perpetrated on this coast, the perpetrators being two Chinamen, Tuck Yuk Wong and Ho Mow King, who have made arrangements with engravers of that city to print fac similes of the notes of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China to the amount of $37,000. The officers have recovered all the notes, paper, copper-plates and other material, and before the market could be flooded with the forgeries, which none but the best expert could detect. Charges of forgery have been entered against the Chinamen, and eminent counsel have been employed to prosecute the cases.

The Vallejo Chronicle of the 12th has this: On the arrival of the Stockton boat at Benicia, on Friday evening last, two passengers landed, a man and woman; the former was intoxicated, and the party having a large amount of baggage, the proprietor of one of the hotels asked the lady if she wished a coach; on answering in the affirmative, the brutal wretch calling himself her husband struck her a violent blow in the face, saying at the same time that "he was boss over that baggage." This cowardly act excited the indignation of the bystanders, who would have arrested the ruffian but for the earnest entreaties of the poor woman. They entered the coach together and while on the way to the hotel he renewed the assault, disfiguring her face in a frightful manner. At her request Constable Donnelly then arrested the brute. He was kept in the calaboose until next morning, when his wife declined to prosecute, saying that she would endeavor to "tolerate him a little longer." The parties came down from Nortonville, where the woman has worked as cook, maintaining her husband in idleness. The affair caused considerable excitement in the usually quiet town of Benicia.

POLITICAL ITEMS.

The New York Star (Tammany) is pressing the claims of Governor Hoffman for the Presidency. It says that "the theories of Mr. Pendleton and his friends should never be allowed expression in another Democratic convention."

The Democrats in Congress and elsewhere are making preparations for starting a party newspaper in Washington, the first number to be issued on the 1st of September. A large amount of capital has been contributed. James E. Harvey, Ex-Minister to Portugal, is reported as one of the editors.

The Troy Press proclaims that the Democratic party must have nothing to do with soldier candidates for the Presidency, and especially it must have no more Frank Blair experiments, to see how badly it can be beaten. The Press manifests a sort of hankering after Hoffman for the first place on the ticket.

The Macon (Ga.) Telegraph and Messenger bewails the departure of the good old times of slavery and the lash. It says: "The whites of the South have no ill feeling toward good negroes. It is only the lazy, idle, impudent, and dishonest class of negroes that they dislike, and they regret that they cannot now, as they once did, whip it out of them."

Thomas Mooney of San Francisco announces himself as a candidate for Gubernatorial honors in California, and advances the assurance that if he is elected he will drive the Chinese out of the State within three months after his inauguration. Mr. Mooney is a thoroughbred demagogue, and always has an eye to business. The voter who would allow such a demagogue to deceive him does not deserve the elective franchise.

At a Democratic meeting in Fairfield county, Ohio, the other day, it was resolved that the war for the Union "was a partisan war for spoils" and "a violation of the constitution;" that the war debt "is a fraud upon the people," and that "we are in favor of disowning the bonded debt, or, in other words, are in favor of repudiating it, and if paid, we are in favor of letting the abolition party and its negro allies pay it." The New York Herald notices this, and inquires: "Why don't the sensible Democrats keep these Copperheads quiet?" Simply because the "Copperheads" outnumber the "sensible Democrats" at the rate of several for one.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Chang, one of the Siamese twins, is pining for North Carolina, but Eng will not leave Europe, and Chang does not feel as if he could go home without him.

Very appropriate is the quaint device traced upon a herdsman's sword, which has long been in the Museum at Salzburg, Austria: "Whoever finds anything ere it is lost, or buys ere it is for sale, dies ere he falls sick."

A comic paper at Vienna entitled Der Floh, the flea, has been complained of by the Papal Nuncio, for having published caricatures of Pius IX., but the Austrian government refuses to take any measures against the journal.

The diamond known as the "Star of South Africa," the consignment of which from the Cape of Good Hope was reported in July last, having been cut, has proved a matchless stone of most resplendent quality, of about 156 grains weight.

The discussion going on in the Canadian press over the question of cutting loose from England, is pointed and significant. The Montreal Gazette puts the whole question in a sentence: "If we call ourselves independent to-morrow, and have not the necessary power to maintain the position, we must either exist by sufferance or lean on some greater State."

Lately, says the London Broad Arrow, every week has seen bodies of troops being exercised on the railway between Berlin and Hamburg, in preparing trains of carriages, entering and descending from the same, and loading and unloading them with materials of war. The construction of the line which is to connect Kiel with the railway network of Europe is being unremittingly pursued.

The Bishop of Chester has refused to consecrate a church at West Derby, near Liverpool, on account of the elaborate character of the decorations. The walls and roof, and almost every part of the church, are covered with painting and gilding, and there is an altar piece which the Bishop considers objectionable. The founder of the church, a Mrs. Reade, who has spent 130,000 upon it, and refuses to alter to suit the Bishop's views, threatens him with a law suit.

The English Government has beaten ours on one measure, much mooted in Congress, but never fairly acted on. That is, they have put in practice a "Jenckes Civil Service bill," or "The new Order in Council," as they call it, to take effect after August 31, 1870, which directs that all entrance appointments to all situations in all civil departments of the State "shall be filled by open competition." After his appointment the candidate must pass through six months' probation, as a test of his capacity and fitness for the position, and the chiefs of the departments are vested with the power of prompt dismissal, if the party proves incompetent or unfit.

A London paper of June 24, says: The Invalide Russe announces forthcoming mighty musters of warriors, which must make Aldershot and even Chalons feel rather small. At least three-fourths of the colossal Russian army is to be exercised this summer in thirty-four camps, formed in every part of the empire. One hundred and thirty-eight regiments of the line, fifteen of light infantry, forty brigades of artillery, each of three batteries, and the whole of the cavalry, will be put through the course. The first series at the camp at Warsaw will alone, and without counting the engineers and the administration, include 80,000 men, disposed in six divisions of infantry, two of cavalry, six battalions of light infantry and six brigades of artillery.

Ceasing to Grow.

Some men have vivid recollections of what they have done. Real difficulties have been overcome, gulfs bridged, giants slaughtered, and these are dwelt on with accumulated pleasure. The older they get the more romantic is the story. This is fatal to growth. 'Twill not do to enjoy past successes too much. Hope dies of apoplexy. A bad sign it is to hear any man eloquent on deeds past. The deeds are sadly vitiated, if remembered with such extreme satisfaction. Joy they ought to have given at the time, but has the heart expanded none since, that a pleasure twenty years ago is the same pleasure still? Growing men wipe out each day's results; they count nothing. Such men never cultivate the memory of themselves, but choose to forget how they won their old reputation. Sir Isaac Newton totally forgot some of his optical discoveries, and insisted against a friend that he had never made them, until that friend read to him his own account of the discoveries. But the Pharisee didn't have a bad memory of his fasting and almsgiving.

It is doubtful whether there be such a thing as maturity, in the sense in which the word is commonly used. In respect to given standards of developed intellect and actual success, maturity does exist; but no terminus can be fixed for growth. After the body has attained its maximum development the intellect expands. Many of the greatest books have been produced late in life. Sophocles, Racine, Goethe, Shakspeare, Milton, DeFoe, Brougham, Chalmers, grew intellectually to an advanced age. But if the intellect is apparently arrested in its expansion, how much silent growth derived from the moral nature continues to go on! Not much knowledge of outward things may be gained, but wisdom is increasing—the calm, clear insight, the profounder and perfectly unselfish sense of one's self, and the awe of personality, and these supply new and unimagined materials for inward sustenance. The heart is more and more of a feeder to growth as we advance in years, and the decay of the senses and of sensuous charms is a condition of its full service in our final development. Our impulses, our enthusiasms, our aspirations, require most of our circumstantial life to drop away before they can be true enough to do their grandest work.—Harper's Bazar.

Edwin Drood.

The London Times says:

"'The Mystery of Edwin Drood,' we are told, gave its author more trouble than any of his former works. He complained of this, perhaps, with a sad presage of the truth. He had, he thought, told too much of the story in the early numbers, and his thoughts did not flow so freely as of yore. It will remain incomplete for ever, and the fourth part of the story already given to the public, and another part in manuscript, are all that will be known of the last set of original characters their author has introduced to the world. When Mr. Dickens complained of his work giving him trouble we may be sure that the cause prompting the remark was not slight, for no writer set before himself more laboriously the task of giving the public his very best. A great artist, who once painted the portrait while he was in the act of writing one of the most popular of his stories, relates that he was astonished at the trouble Dickens seemed to take over his work at the number of forms in which he would write down a thought before he would hit out the one which seemed to his fastidious fancy the best and at the comparative smallness of the amount of manuscript each day's sitting seemed to have produced. Those, too, who have seen the original manuscripts of his works, many of which he had bound and kept at his residence at Gad's Hill, describe them as full of interlineations and alterations, while it is well known that the quaint surnames of his characters, concerning which essays have been written, were the result of much pains-taking. Dickens, with a genius which might have justified his trusting it implicitly and solely, placed his chief reliance on his own hard labor. It is said that when he saw a strange or odd name on a shop board or in walking through a country town or village he entered it in his pocket book, and added it to his reserve list. Then runs the story, when he wanted a striking surname for a new character he had but to take the first half of one real name, and to add to it the second half of another, to produce the exact effect upon the eye and ear of the reader he desired."

An Ohio member of a School Board delivered the following speech at a recent sitting of the Board: "I rise for to—that is, to make the motion which is as follows: Resolved, That there are no need to build such costly school-houses as some of this ere board is proposin to 'rect. No, Mr. Cheerman, I'm 'posed to spendin money for more houses. The old ones are pretty good yit, and for to go for to build a pretty slick house which will cost $10,000, or more yet, it's all wasted."

THE TERRITORIES.

Some lots of Oregon wheat have reached Puget Sound by way of San Francisco.

Two hundred tons of ore from Cottonwood mines were shipped from Salt Lake City, 120 tons to Newark, New Jersey, and eighty tons to Sacramento.

The Thirteenth United States Infantry, under command of General De Trobriand, en route from Fort Shaw, Montana, to Salt Lake, was expected at Corinne, July 13th.

Prof. F. V. Hayden will carry on the "Hayden Geological Survey" during the present season in Washington Territory. He may be expected in a few weeks and will continue his work till a complete survey of the Territory is had. He will make our resources a special study, mapping out all agricultural as well as mineral lands.

From the Port Townsend Message, 9th: Pilot McAlmond reports that he piloted the schooner Flying Mist to the halibut banks off Tatoosh Light last Saturday morning. The Flying Mist left San Francisco some six weeks ago for halibut, and took in some 25 tons of ice expressly for this business, to load with halibut for the San Francisco market.

News from Snake River mines comes by way of Corinne. A telegram from that place, July 12, reports that work in the mines commences under the most favorable auspices. The men are making from five to twenty dollars per day. Mining tools and supplies are very scarce and high. It is the opinion of old miners that the diggings will be perpetual; that the bars worked out this year will be replaced by next year's freshets.

On the 12th inst. W. B. Snow, on behalf of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, executed a contract with Brigham Young for an exclusive connection with the wires of the Deseret Telegraph Company. The Deseret Company's lines cover the Utah Central Railroad from Ogden to Salt Lake City, and are already in operation one hundred miles north of Ogden, and nearly five hundred miles south of Salt Lake City. They are the only lines reaching into Arizona and the newly discovered mining district.

[illegible] and ran back a dark alley. Charley Goldstein, who occupies the premises, says he heard him making attempts either to get [illegible] at the rear or get on the roof. [illegible] He had sworn to kill Aleck Hamilton and John Lawless, and probably that was one purpose he had in coming into the city, though his infatuation for a young woman employed in the cellar he had entered, was the principal incentive to his daring and foolhardy conduct. He knew that a reward was offered for him and that dozens of men were hunting him. He seems to have had an idea that he could fight his way out if pursued. He and his accomplice had camped in the woods above Terwilliger's place, till Tuesday night, when they moved into one of the canyons just back of the city. He will be arraigned probably to-day, when we shall be able to get fuller and more accurate details connected with the whole affair of the robbery, Wilson's doings since and of the chase and capture last night. It is hoped that he will yet give information as to who was his accomplice in the robbery. He confessed last night that the man had been with him and was in the city last night.

REVENUE MATTERS.—The newspapers are no longer permitted to publish the Income tax lists in detail, but through the favor of Collector Banby, we have obtained the following aggregates of taxes assessed in the Collection District of Oregon for the year 1869—taxes which are now in process of collection:

Division
1	Columbia, Clatsop and Tillamook	$ 7,205 55
2	Yamhill and Washington	2,385 50

CHASING THE ROBBERS—FRESH SENSATIONS.—Yesterday the city was again full of rumors concerning the Hilton robbers. It was reported that Wilson and a confederate had entered a brewery heavily armed, had exhibited some of the stolen property, boasting confidently that they could not be taken. There were also two or three other stories afloat, all of which were probably more sensational than otherwise. We do not believe anybody has seen Wilson in the manner reported, though he may be lurking in or around the city. It is certain, however, that a number of parties were out nearly all of Tuesday night, watching in every direction, and that a considerable number of men were on a chase all day yesterday, armed with revolvers and shot guns. The excitement in certain quarters was almost as great as in old times, when our exposed frontier hamlets were exposed to, and in hourly expectation of an attack by Lo, the poor Indian. We heard once during the day that the pursuers were on a "dead sure track," and that we could probably dish up Wilson this morning in small caps and italics, with dashes, exclamation points, etc., etc. Up to the present time, however, our caps, italics and seasoning material are all quietly resting in their cases, while Wilson—well, [illegible]

THURSDAY MORNING JULY [illegible] 1870

CITY.

WILSON THE ROBBER TAKEN—AN EXCITING CHASE.—About 10 o'clock last night Wilson, one of the robbers on the White House road, was discovered in a beer cellar on Morrison street. Information of the fact was immediately given to the Sheriff and his special police [illegible] M [illegible] [illegible] but a moment [illegible] bounders. Wilson slipped out [illegible] and then went [illegible] waiting [illegible] up [illegible] and then went [illegible] corner of First [illegible] Morrison street. When near [illegible] corner of First [illegible] Taylor came up [illegible] and commanded him to halt and surrender. Wilson started to [illegible] fired several shots, all the time chasing. Wilson ran up Morrison [illegible] firing back several shots. In an instant several [illegible] joined in the pursuit and quite a number of shots were fired. [illegible] pressed Wilson so hard that after turning [illegible] Third street one or two [illegible] from the corner of Morrison he leaped the fence and ran back a dark alley. Charley [illegible] who occupies the premises says [illegible] heard him making attempts either [illegible] into the kitchen at the rear or get on the roof. The crowd of pursuers filled the [illegible] but for a few moments Wilson was not discovered. Torches were sent for. Meantime Deputy Sheriff Bills who had mounted the fence to get a view of the kitchen roof, discovered the fugitive in a plum tree. At the same moment Aleck Hamilton, one of the persons who had been stopped on the White House road and who fired at Wilson, also discovered him in the tree. In an instant several guns and revolvers were brought to bear on Wilson and he was ordered to come down. Seeing that there was no possible chance of escape he cried out "I surrender" and slid down. He had scarcely touched the ground when Sheriff Bills had him by each wrist in one of his iron grips and Wilson was disarmed and marched off to the county jail where he was [illegible] and securely locked in a cell. He had on his person two revolvers and an immense bowie knife [illegible] taken. One of the pistols, in the excitement, was lost. At the jail it was found that he had received a wound in the thigh on the night of the robbery, from one of Aleck Hamilton's pistol shots. One pistol ball went through his hat in the pursuit last night but his person was not touched, nor was anybody else hit. Upon getting him into the jail he was asked if he had Johnny Holton's watch. He replied promptly, "Yes," and pulled it out of his pocket and gave it to the sheriff. It was recognized as Holton's watch by persons who had [illegible] seen it. Wilson confesses that he and another man perpetrated the robberies but he refuses to tell who his accomplice is. He says he did visit the negro restaurant the other night as was reported, and again the brewery above town on Sunday night compelling several unarmed men to drink with him. He had sworn to kill Aleck Hamilton and John Lawless and probably that was one purpose he had in coming into the city, though his infatuation for a young woman employed in the cellar he had entered was the principal incentive to his daring and foolhardy conduct. He knew that a reward was offered for him and that dozens of men were hunting him. He seems to have had an idea that he could fight his way out if pursued. He and his accomplice [illegible] in the woods above Terwilliger's [illegible] till Tuesday night when they [illegible] into one of the canyons just back of the city. He will be arraigned probably to-day, when we shall be able to get fuller and more accurate details connected with the [illegible] of the robbery. Wilson's doings since [illegible] the chase and capture last night. It is [illegible] he will yet give information as to [illegible] his accomplice in the robbery. He confessed last night that the man had been with him [illegible] the city last night.

THE DISTINGUISHED DEAD.—We find in a leading New York paper of July 2d under the head of "Death's Doings—Weekly record of the demise of Prominent Individuals," the following paragraph: "Yu Lunc Sing Po—formerly Grand Admiral of the Chinese navy, from which he was [illegible] by the Emperor for disobedience [illegible] war—on the California and Oregon [illegible] recently." The Grand Admiral came to this country in exceedingly modest style, worked on the railroad as a common laborer [illegible] and was buried with what pomp and circumstance his countrymen could get up. It was unfortunate for his great rebelship that he did not land in New York—he might have got Horace Greeley to go on his bond and could have then returned with honors to his native country if not to his command in the navy.

OREGON HOMESTEAD AND IMMIGRATION ASSOCIATION.—A M Loryea, H [illegible] Boyd and T [illegible] have entered into a corporate association the objects of which are to induce emigrants to come to the State of Oregon and settle on the lands of the association, to advance moneys [illegible] emigrants to assist emigrants on their arrival, to purchase and own lands [illegible] and personal property and dispose of the same [illegible] water powers and erect mills [illegible] machinery. Reports of Committees

From Committee of Ways and Means—to whom was referred the semi-annual report of the Auditor and Clerk, recommending the publication of the report. Adopted.

From same Committee—to whom was referred the communications of several newspapers in regard to city printing—communications returned with their recommendation. Report ordered to be placed on file.

From same Committee recommending the refunding of $[illegible] to Jennie M Smith and [illegible] $11 50 taxes double assessed and collected. Adopted.

From same Committee—to whom was referred the petitions of John Donovan and others for remission of taxes, report adversely to the petitioners. Adopted.

From Committee on Streets and Public Property—to whom was referred the [illegible] in relation to the [illegible] reported in favor of temporary relief and [illegible] in favor [illegible] settle the [illegible] of the city and the rights of parties in the matter. Report adopted.

From same committee—to whom was referred the petition of H W Davis for permit to improve a certain part of Salmon street, report favorable to petition. Adopted.

From same committee—to whom was referred the petition of H McDonald for relief in the matter of building the music stand at the Plaza, reported in favor of paying E Milwain $7 50 and H McDonald $24. Laid on the table.

From same committee—to whom was referred the remonstrance of S M [illegible] and others against the proposed improvement of Oak street, reported in favor of going on with the improvement. Report adopted.

Remonstrance of P A Marquam and others representing 2 076 feet frontage on Lincoln street, against proposed improvement of such street, referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

A report was read from the Auditor stating that the Marshal had returned a delinquent tax list of about $3 000, and recommending the issue of alias warrants and an inquiry into the liability of the First National Bank. On motion the Auditor was directed to issue alias warrants and on motion the other part of the report was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Claims Against the City.

The following claims were allowed and warrants ordered drawn for their payment: [illegible] G Baker, street work $394 45; W H Brackett $2 000 on contract for building engine house for No 4; H L Pittock advertising $48 [illegible]; Geo H Himes printing $15 00; J K Kelly, E D Shattuck and D M [illegible] street viewers $5 00 each; Hay & Sylvester repairs to engine and hose of Fire Department $23 00; Columbia Iron Works $112 78; C H Myers sundry bills for lamp posts, repairs, etc., $127 05.

Ordinances Introduced

An ordinance to appropriate moneys ($100) out of general fund to refund taxes paid twice. Read third time and passed.

An ordinance to amend ordinance No 750 to provide for the time and manner of improving Main street (extending time for completion to Sept 1st) read three times and passed.

An ordinance making an appropriation ($28 [illegible]) for relief of F C Payne (for firing salute in honor of Wm H Seward). Read first time and laid over.

An ordinance to provide for time and manner of improving Oak street between Second and East Park streets. Read three times and passed.

An ordinance concerning bathing in the Wallamet river. Read three times and passed. (Forbids bathing in the river or lakes within city limits between H street and Caruthers land claim line in day time except in proper bathing dress under penalty of fine from $5 to $30, and imprisonment from two to fifteen days.)

An ordinance to repeal ordinance 284 to prevent the carrying of concealed weapons. Read twice and laid over. In connection with remarks on this ordinance Mr Hill stated that the Chairman of the Committee on Health and Police would report at next meeting an ordinance providing for an increase of the police force.

An ordinance to regulate the letting of contracts for street work. Read three times and passed.

Ordinances Read Third Time.

Ordinance fixing salary of Secretary of Fire Department, read and laid over.

Ordinance making an appropriation ($246 50) for the relief of V H & L Co No 1. Amended in title and then in body of ordinance so as to make an ordinance appropriating money for the purchase of the alarm bell in use by the V H & L C, and then the ordinance passed.

Ordinance to amend ordinance 436 relating to salary of Street Commissioner.

Pending consideration of this ordinance the Council adjourned.

THEATRICAL.—Mr Vinson informs us that the Theater will not be opened till next Tuesday evening, when Miss Annie Pixley will appear for a benefit with a bill of great attractions. Until the fall season shall arrive there will be but one performance each week, but as each performance for five successive weeks will be a benefit, the company will devote themselves diligently to getting out each time a really first class entertainment—new plays new songs and dances and new features throughout.

SUDDEN ADJOURNMENT.—The City Council in session last night when the firing at Wilson commenced on the street, adjourned with more celerity than comported with high legislative dignity. The sudden hegira of reporters and spectators was too much for the grave and reverend seignors and so they shut down on legislation and joined in the double-quick trot after the desperado Wilson.

A PRETTY THIEF [illegible].—A fellow named Godfrey found a sidewalk sleeper yesterday morning on First street and started to go through him. Just as he had gone so far as to appropriate to his own use and behoof a comb and plug of tobacco belonging to the sleeper, officer McCoy nabbed him. Godfrey now lodges in the city jail.

SHIPPING NEWS.—The ship Helois will sail next week for Callao. The Falkirk [illegible] was to sail from Westport yesterday. She takes 900 bbls salmon and balance of cargo lumber. The [illegible] has received telegraphic orders to remain in port for the present on account of the Franco Prussian war.

CHILD ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.—At East Portland Tuesday evening, a boy named Thomas Owens who was handling a loaded shot gun accidentally discharged the piece. A portion of the charge took effect upon a little two year old child standing near, inflicting a not dangerous wound.

DEPUTY ASSESSORS.—Mr Dean, Assessor has appointed as deputies Messrs Oscar [illegible] and Charles Schram. They will collect at the time of making the assessment the State poll tax of one dollar, and no other person is authorized to collect.

FOR VICTORIA.—The propeller [illegible] sailed last evening for Victoria and Puget Sound. The following persons went passengers: Rev Father Fit[illegible], Rev [illegible] Watkins, J L Busshe, Miss Susan Barry, Mrs A Foster and three children.

TO WHOM THE CREDIT.—We found it out too late an hour for correction that we have fallen into several errors in the relation of the story of W[illegible] [illegible] capture last night. [illegible] to get all the [illegible] [illegible]

FROM THE COAST.—A party of eight persons who went [illegible] to the [illegible] at the mouth of Salmon river about two weeks ago arrived home last evening. They report having had a splendid party.

CIRCUS.—Barth [illegible] arrived yesterday and pitched his tent on the ground lately occupied by Nelson's circus. He will open to-night and will show for three successive nights.

CONTEST ABANDONED.—We learn from Mr B L Norden that he has abandoned the contest for the County Clerk's office.

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY.—We notice that [illegible] received numerous packages of machinery and farm implements by the Ajax [illegible]

Pure Air.—People who live in low latitudes where malarial fevers and [illegible] exist should not go out until the rays of the sun [illegible] the fogs and [illegible] [illegible] the fevers, they should seek shelter in the evening [illegible] If the weather continues cloudy, damp and rainy, even though it be warm, fires should be kindled to dry the air and dispel the poisonous fevers. Persons who have observed these simple rules and keep the system well regulated by a constant use of PLANTATION BITTERS as prescribed in the printed directions which accompany each bottle have been known to live a hundred years in the very worst of yellow fever districts and yet never contract the terrible disease. The vegetable ingredients of the bitters are dandelion chamomile and that wonderful elixir of life—calisaya bark fresh from the Peruvian forests of South America. No settler [illegible] will ever be without PLANTATION BITTERS.

Want of Vitality.

Some men need the elasticity of vitality [illegible] large and apparently well developed frames. Herculean sinews and muscles are not always indicative of stamina and constitutional vigor. In this [illegible] Health depends more upon the [illegible] of the [illegible] the liver and the bowels than upon the breadth of the shoulders or the size of muscles and pulleys of the system in which strength is supposed to reside. All the grand animal machinery is of itself no protection against weakness and decay. Easy and perfect digestion, regular and healthy secretions, uncontaminated blood, and a regular discharge of the waste matter of the body through the intestines [illegible] are the most potent safeguards against disease. The best guarantee of longevity. To promote these objects is the great end and purpose of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. G. VENARD,

CHARTRES COFFEE!

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER NOS 685 AND 537 FRONT ST

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here and in the markets of the interior a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned and placed on their guard against this practice.

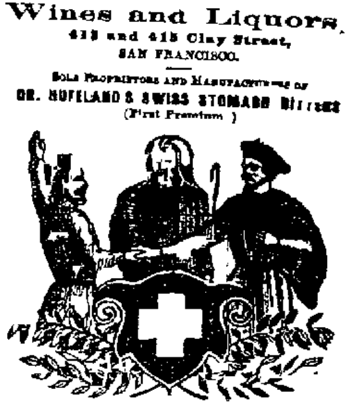
DR. HUFELAND'S SWISS STOMACH BITTERS

(First Premium.)



The world renowned reputation, together with the extensive and increasing demand for DR HUFELAND'S SWISS BITTERS will at once recommend them to the favorable notice of all connoisseurs and lovers of a GOOD AND HEALTHFUL TONIC AND INVIGORATOR. As a Purifier of the Blood, acting surely yet gently on the secretions of the Liver and Kidneys, they are unsurpassed, and a most agreeable drink. [illegible]

This Remedy does not simply relieve for a short time but it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh and I will pay $500 reward for a case that I cannot cure. "Cold in the head" and Catarrhal Headache are cured with a few applications. If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, stopping up of the nose at times, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull, have pain or pressure in the head, you may rest assured that you have Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. PARTICULARS OF THE GREAT RACE BETWEEN THE STEAMERS LEE AND NATCHEZ—EXCITING SCENES AND INCIDENTS

THE STEAMERS AT MEMPHIS

[From the Memphis Avalanche July 2]

The Robert E Lee arrived at the wharf last night at 11 10 P M making the distance from Helena in 6 hours and 40 minutes. This is not good time but some delay perhaps half an hour was made by cleaning her boilers. The time from New Orleans to Memphis by the Lee, is 2 days 6 hours and 12 minutes the best time ever made. The time occupied in coaling at the wharf here was 8 minutes. The Natchez came at 12:9, and left at 12:27—losing 18 minutes in coaling and landing. That is, the Natchez came in 59 minutes behind the Lee and lost 10 minutes more at the landing in putting off her passengers.

The Lee was in sight 30 minutes from the time she first appeared below the city until she passed from view above and the Natchez 40 minutes. Each boat had two coal barges awaiting them in the middle of the river held up in the stream by tug boats the latter of which cut loose as soon as the barges were made fast. Each coal barge contained 500 barrels of coal, making 1 000 for each steamer. The coal merchants had loaded the boats exactly alike and with the same quality of coal on each. The Natchez lost 18 minutes at the landing—10 more than the Lee.

The bluff last night presented an animated picture. After sundown crowds began to gather from every part of the city. Street cars came from every part of the suburbs crowded with fair belles and escorts who made their way to the bluff and mixed with the dense throng composed of all classes from the wealthy banker and merchant to the poorest boot-black. From Adams street to Howard's row the levee was a living mass of human beings. Under the bluff and along the wharf great crowds were gathered and standing room was at a premium. The upper stories, balconies and roofs of the buildings along Front street were all crowded with people of both sexes. The several steamers and the St. Louis wharf-boat were filled with visitors desirous of witnessing the approach of the celebrated racers. More than two hours before their expected arrival eyes were looking anxiously down the river, beyond President's island, apparently thinking they would catch a glimpse of [illegible]

[illegible] IN THE RACE

During the afternoon, a collection had been taken up to defray the expense of an illumination and tar pitch and turpentine had been [illegible] and placed at intervals along the bluff. Shortly after 11 o'clock, when the Lee was signaled by her bright green and red lanterns showing around the point near the head of President's island, a grand illumination was lighted. The scene will long be remembered. At the firing of the first gun, opposite Fort Pickering, loud cheers went up from the immense crowd, variously estimated at from 10,000 to 12,000, reminding those familiar with the sounds of a regular Confederate battle-yell. While the Lee was making fast to the coal boats awaiting her in the middle of the stream, the enthusiasm was high and until she was out of hearing around the point above the city, it continued unabated. One hour after the Lee had gone out of sight, the approach of the Natchez was announced. She came up looking majestically and with the speed of a race-horse firing her signal gun for the coal boats to be got in readiness.

THE BETTING AT MEMPHIS

Was for the most part on the Lee, but with no great odds. Perhaps the amount bet in this city did not exceed $30 000 in cash about 1 000 hats, 5,000 bottles of wine, and a few hundred boxes of cigars. The odds from ten minutes to an hour were given by the friends of the Lee, and they won.

From Memphis to Cairo the distance is 240 miles, and the hardest run in the race. Pilotage will tell on this end of the water track. Tar, pitch and turpentine will be used enormously. Ten barrels of lard oil on the Natchez will be consumed between here and Cairo and fifty barrels of the best North Carolina tar, shipped from Tarboro by way of Louisville, will be delivered to the Lee between Memphis and Hickman Kentucky.

AT CAIRO

[Correspondence of the St. Louis Democrat]

Cairo (Ill.) July 3 —The Lee's progress from New Orleans was one long continued ovation. Cannons were fired at many points innumerable rockets were sent up and every day the banks of the great river showed groups of men women and children, shouting and waving handkerchiefs. At Natchez the famous horns of the Princess whose time has not been beaten for fourteen years were taken down and are now on board the Robert E. Lee. They were fairly and honorably won.

The citizens of Cairo fired cannon many times while the Lee was passing, and the whole population turned out en masse while over one thousand persons from Louisville St Louis, Evansville, Paducah and other places were here or on board the steamers. The Odd Fellow, Idlewild, Armada, Ruby and others went down the river several miles to see the wonderful racer pass under full head way.

About eight miles above Cairo the Lee seemed to touch bottom and for some minutes she was turned crossways of the river in full sight of the city. The Natchez ran the same course and did precisely the same thing. Each boat lost about four minutes.

AT GRAND TOWER ILLINOIS

[Dispatch to the St Louis Democrat]

Grand Tower, July 4 —The most intense excitement has prevailed here for the last twenty four hours, ever since the contest between the steamers Lee and Natchez. Nothing on the river has ever produced such interest among our citizens and river men as the present. Speculation has been rife as to which boat would win but the majority sided with the Lee.

THE [illegible] AT ST LOUIS

St Louis July 4 —The steamer Robert E Lee arrived at 11.25 A M. to day three days eighteen hours and fourteen minutes from New Orleans, beating the Natchez on her last trip three hours and forty four minutes and the James M White's famous time four hours and fifty-five minutes. The Natchez was detained by a heavy fog below Grand Tower one hundred and twenty five miles below here, and did not pass that point until 6 [illegible]

The trip was an ovation from first to last along the river. Thousands flocked even from many miles in the interior to see the racers pass and bonfires cannon anvils and everything that could shoot were brought into use to give vent to the feelings on the occasion. The crowd at the levee here was immense. The bank of the river was lined with people from Carondelet to above the city a distance of six miles, and the windows and housetops along the city front were filled with enthusiastic spectators. No similar event ever caused such excitement or brought out such a crowd. A million dollars probably changed hands on the result of the race. The Natchez arrived at her landing in St Louis six hours and eleven minutes after the Lee.

The editor of the Indianapolis [illegible] writes the obituary of that paper in which he says. The brilliancy of our career has only been equalled by its brevity. But we retire with one piece of knowledge we never possessed before. We are satisfied that we are fully competent to close the affairs of any paper on the shortest notice.

The Late Fire at Constantinople

The New York [illegible] has [illegible] Constantinople [illegible] extract the following [illegible] of the great conflagration [illegible]

[illegible] Many persons were [illegible] number were taken out [illegible] [illegible] even [illegible] from the [illegible] only [illegible] [illegible] wells slightly covered over, into which one may be precipitated with [illegible] any warning. People however [illegible] the numbers of lost children [illegible] being already [illegible] stated as being 2 000 while only a few hundred have been found [illegible]. Where are the [illegible]

The Mussulman population of Stamboul and other parts of the capital have shown far more sympathy for the Christians than was shown by the latter [illegible] them [illegible] which burned down [illegible] Stamboul [illegible] the city of the Marmora. Many offer their houses gratis or for nominal rents.

Many families which were wealthy possessing from £10 000 to £40 000 sterling are now poor and do not know where to find a shelter if not from the benevolence of their relatives and friends. In many cases whole families were burned to death and in others several members. In one case twenty seven were found [illegible] The quantity of jewelry lost is very great among the Armenians and Greeks large amounts in Ottoman bank notes [illegible] having been burned. So much gain to the bank and Imperial treasury.

Sententious Sayings

Worth [illegible] gave us no end of pig[illegible] utterances. Those of Lincoln would fill a volume. Chiefest of all these that noble god-like sentiment "With charity for all and malice toward none."

McClellan's chief exploit was to make us acquainted with the phrase "Change of base."

Grant gave us "fight it out on this line" "unconditional surrender" "I propose to move immediately upon your works" "bottled up" and hundred others. It seems to have escaped notice that Grant is responsible for more of these characterizing, elementary crystallizations of thought than any military leader of modern times.

Sherman first gave utterance to the great truth showing at once statesmanship and military sagacity, "The Confederacy is a shell," and he had the rare felicity of practically demonstrating his own theorem by his March to the Sea.

Sheridan's character and his style of fighting are expressed by "sent them whirling up the valley."

Pope's unfortunate orders from "Headquarters in the Saddle" gave General Lee opportunity for the one solitary joke of his life time —"What can you expect of a General who puts his headquarters where his hindquarters ought to be?"

Butler [illegible] with the pen than with the sword, cut through one of the knottiest problems of the war with the name "Contraband."

Hard on the Alaskans

The prohibition of the sale of alcoholic stimulants in Alaska has begun to produce some novel but not unexpected results. A Sitka saloon keeper advertises for sale his bar room fixtures billiard tables, etc on the subject of which the Alaska Times moralizes as follows

Not being an advocate of a prohibitory liquor law we are inclined to the opinion that in this free and enlightened age every one who desires to refresh his inner man with a drink of good whisky or brandy should have the opportunity in Alaska as well as in any other part of Uncle Sam's dominions. As it is we are deprived of that luxury of civilized life because forsooth the wiseacres of our Government are of the opinion that if alcoholic drinks in limited quantities, are introduced into this Territory for sale to and for the private use of the white population the Indians thereby will become demoralized, from their knowing the fact of its introduction.

In this city of Sitka to day it is almost impossible to purchase for any consideration alcoholic stimulants. The saloons that grew fat and plethoric in the days when gin-slings and whisky cocktails ad genus omne could be had for the asking, can now offer but a glass of lager to thirsty panting souls who have exhausted the stock of our different merchants of all the bitters that possessed the least flavor of their favorite alcohol. It is a pitiful sight indeed, to witness the sad diminution in color that the hitherto ruby noses of our thirsty friends present.

One of the most heart rending elopements on record is that of Mordecai Skaggs, an Indianian by birth but a Chicagoan by adoption who left a legitimate spouse at Owen Spencer county Indiana, and fled with a beautiful "affinity" toward the Lake City. The deserted wife like a pursuing Nemesis, "went for him." She tracked him from stage to stage of his journey and finally overtook the fugitive but not before he had consummated marriage a second time.

When found she did not pause "to make a note" of Mordecai but seized him by the beard very much as Othello did the uncircumcised Jew, yet not caring to slay him outright she exploded a pitcher of ice water upon his heated brow, and while still clasping his disheveled locks pelted the supposed guilty partner of his flight with the fragments of the broken vessel. But the chief shock of this disaster to the unfortunate Skaggs occurred in the interval of a brief cessation of hostilities when the enraged wife demanded to know of the other woman why she had thus outraged the sanctity of her domestic altars and the "other woman" explained that the too seductive Skaggs had represented himself as a single man. Thereupon the two joined forces and set upon Mordecai pulling his hair out by the roots scarifying his manly phiz with their delicate claws and so marring and disfiguring this "double breasted" deceiver that not even the penetration of the maternal eye could discover in that battered carcass the once familiar lineaments of a beloved son.

Horrible Diseases

How many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering [illegible] from [illegible] self indulgence [illegible] which the pallid emaciated and [illegible] broken-down constitutions disqualify [illegible] the happiness of marriage or the enjoyments of life [illegible] Send them immediately to Doct Gibbon a physician who has made private diseases a special study [illegible] years and who [illegible] It is important for those who are afflicted, and those who are interested in the welfare of their friends to be careful of the many pretended doctors who [illegible] publishing their skill in curing all disease [illegible] upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians [illegible] carefully and make strict inquiry [illegible] fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms unless combatted by scientific medical measures [illegible]
